artiselsewhere.org is a recently created online platform for critical essays, reviews, poems, and digital art exhibitions. The platform is part of an initiative that wants to give young authors and artists the possibility to publish and present their work to an online audience. Our goal is to create a space for an interdisciplinary, dynamic, and contemporary discourse, that reflects on social, technological, and environmental developments.

The exhibition planned on the platform is running under the name "lucid dreams. visions of tomorrow"

We invite digital artists to submit ideas, drafts, finished works or proposals that reflect on social upheavals, technology, environment, war, migration, postcolonialism, equality, and related subjects. The online exhibition "lucid dreams. visions of tomorrow" wants to portray artistic and alternative visions of a global and shared future.

The motivation behind this project is the belief, that our contemporary society is in need of progressive and decentralized spaces, that step out of the closed-circuit systems of classic institutions. We hence invite critical and interdisciplinary minds to submit their work. For us, art has the power to change established systems by uncovering the unseen and we wish to share this vision with a broader public.

Submissions can be sent to endoboy@protonmail.com.

The deadline for submitting ideas and works is June 15, 2022. We will inform you about the acceptance or rejection of your work by July 10, 2022.

We are a non-profit project that functions via voluntary work and a shared passion for art and its critical discourse. You can contact us through our homepage artiselsewhere.org if you have further questions.
